

A test Document

Erarnitox - David Partsch

DropSoft

ABSTRACT

This Documentöööää is an example Document on how to use drop-mark-down. Which is a wrapper around groff for easy writing of papers to be published on dropsoft.org

1. Heading

This was an example heading. at the end of this line is a space a new line. At the end of this line is no spaceThe same line

- this
- is
- a test
- listing
- loooooo

1.1. A sub heading

1.1.1. And so on

You get the point.

$$PPS = \sqrt{\frac{\sum_{i=1}^{\infty} (x_i - \bar{x})^2}{N - 1}}$$

1.1.1.1. down deeeep

Goes down to 6 sub levels

This is a small quoted paragraph. I really hope this will work!Otherwise idk what to do lol-hehe there is a box around me

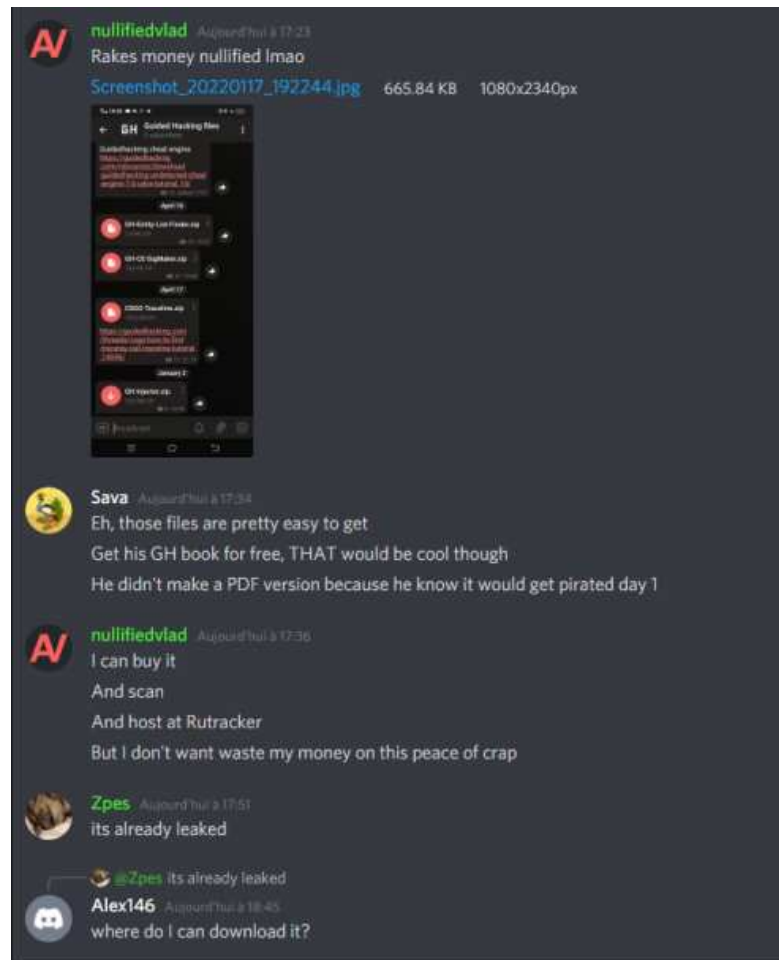

1.2. Testing bold text

This is a small test for bold text.

1.3. Testing italic text

This is a small test for italic text.

1.4. Pictures

description

Welcome to the 36th chamber!

1.5. Code

some source highlighting¹, which can be very useful to have tbh. no one will write or read code without some cool colors!

```
#include <iostream>

int main() {
    std::cout << "Hello World!" << std::endl;
}
```

References

1. Lorenzo Bettini, GNU Source Highlight (2001).